

ABSTRACT

A map providing apparatus receives location information indicative of location of a portable terminal from the portable terminal. A reference direction is specified that is required when a user of the portable terminal brings a map image displayed on the portable terminal into correspondence with actual directions, based on the received location information. A reference direction information is generated for having the user understand the specified reference direction. The generated reference direction information is transmitted to the portable terminal together with the map image.